Customer Problem Statement

• Who is experiencing the problem? Freelancers—ranging from beginners to seasoned professionals in fields like design, writing, technology, and marketing—face persistent challenges in discovering reliable and rewarding job opportunities. They seek a streamlined, trustworthy platform to quickly find legitimate, relevant, and fairly compensated freelance work.

However, their efforts are often blocked by:

Overcrowded job platforms with irrelevant or poor-quality listings Scam or unclear postings with unrealistic expectations or low pay Lack of transparency from clients and delayed communication Difficulty building trust and effectively showcasing their portfolio Excessive competition, often leading to underpricing and burnout

As a result, freelancers are forced to juggle multiple job boards, social media groups, and aggregators—often spending more time searching than actually working. This not only affects their productivity but also leaves them frustrated, anxious, and uncertain about long-term freelance sustainability.

Problem	l am	I'm trying to	But	Because	Which makes me feel
Statement (PS)	(Customer)
PS-1	a freelancer trying to build a stable career	find high- quality, legitimate freelance jobs efficiently	most platforms are crowded with irrelevant or low- paying listings	they lack proper filtering and allow scam or outdated postings	frustrated, demotivated, and unsure if freelancing is sustainable for me
PS-2	a skilled designer new to freelancing	get visibility and land my first few projects	my profile gets overlooked and clients don't trust newcomers easily	the platform doesn't highlight skills or potential, only past reviews	makes me feel discouraged and stuck despite having talent.
